
games for bridal shower

Posted by Mayling Bhutto - 2008/10/03 16:25

I need fun and slightly naughty (remember, just 'slightly' :P) games for a bridal shower. I am actually not the host. I'm just trying to help my brother's girlfriend. We already have a few in mind, but we're hoping to have more ideas.

=====

Re:games for bridal shower

Posted by Beth Goodley - 2008/10/04 16:51

This is usually a crowd favourite in our family gatherings. I think it could be fun in a bridal shower, too.

Give all guests a token (a pin or a ribbon will do). You should announce that there shall be no crossing of legs during the entire party. Anyone who catches someone crossing her legs will have that person's token. The one with the most number of tokens at the end of the party wins. :laugh:

=====

Re:games for bridal shower

Posted by Jaime Castleford - 2008/10/06 09:49

Why don't you try the Bridal Dress making contest? You give teams several rolls of tissue paper which they can use to create the perfect wedding gown. The bride-to-be will be the judge, of course.

=====

Re:games for bridal shower

Posted by Mandy Fabre - 2008/10/22 19:52

Have someone write down the comments of the bride to be every time she opens a gift. After all gifts have been opened, have that person announce that these will be the comments she will make on her honeymoon night. It is all in good fun but just consider what she might say after opening up a set of bath towels: oh how soft and I love the colour.

=====